

Rebecca Kim a Featured Panelist at Columbia Law School's Women of Color in Litigation Panel

February 7, 2020

On February 4, 2020, BLB&G associate Rebecca Kim participated in Columbia Law School's Empowering Women of Color (EWOC) panel on "Women of Color in Litigation."

EWOC is a student organization committed to championing the successes and combating the challenges faced by the community of members who represent multiple identities and intersect various ethnicities, genders, nationalities, orientations and beliefs. The organization's ongoing programming, mentorship, and networking opportunities meets the unique challenge of serving this community.

Rebecca is a Columbia Law School alum and a member of the firm's New Matter Department, in which she, as part of a team of attorneys, financial analysts, and investigators, counsels public pension funds and other institutional investors on potential legal claims.