Partner Mark Lebovitch will serve as a commentator at the University of Pennsylvania Law School's Institute for Law & Economics Fall Corporate Roundtable. Mark's panel will focus on reviewing and commenting on papers by prominent academics, which focus on ESG reporting, accountability, and reform proposals, as well as fiduciary duties and climate change in the United States.

The Institute's Roundtable events provides an opportunity for academics and representatives from the legal, business, and government communities to discuss current problems. The event is invitation-only, and discussions are off-the-record, providing a forum for candid assessment of the targeted issues.
