

"The Importance of Private Securities Litigation as a Complement to 'Worn Out' Regulators" by Scott Foglietta and Brittney Balsler published in the New York Law Journal

September 27, 2021

|BLOCK_PICTURE|

New York Law Journal

|BLOCK_PICTURE|

On September 27, the New York Law Journal published an article by BLB&G partner Scott Foglietta and associate Brittney Balsler, "The Importance of Private Securities Litigation as a Complement to 'Worn Out' Regulators."

The article examines a recent study that concluded that an overburdened SEC tends to neglect the cases involving the greatest harm to investors, and the crucial role that private securities litigation plays in protecting shareholders, enforcing the securities laws, and serving as an important deterrent to corporate misconduct.